Our ommerce with this country has dwindled down to almost nothing in comparison with its former magni-tude. This is accounted for by the enormous decrease in the purchasing power of Peru and by the fact that the steamship company which em-ploys a monopoly of the west coast of South America uses its influence and regulates its freight traffic so as to Crect trade to England. It is the opinion of every merchant in Peru and of the members of the government that these conditions cannot be changed until there is direct communication by steam between the ports of this country and those of the United States.
